

Pending Assets Checklist

Every real-world asset the website and Google Business Profile are currently waiting on — what's needed, why it matters, and what to watch out for before shooting or publishing.

This document exists because the highest-impact items left on the project's punch list all share one property: none of them can be finished from a coding session. They need a camera, a client conversation, or a form filled in by a human who can prove they run the business. This is that list, gathered from every tracker into one place, with enough detail on each item that it can be handed to a photographer, a client-facing colleague, or read on-site during a shoot without needing to cross-reference anything else.

Nothing here is blocking active development work — the site and its content are otherwise current. This is purely the "needs you" queue.

CONTENTS

1. Google Business Profile — setup & verification
2. Google Business Profile — photography (8 shots)
3. Client reviews (Google Business Profile)
4. On-site testimonials & case studies (website "Selected Work")
5. Optional / lower-priority items
6. Rules that apply across every item above

Google Business Profile — setup & verification

Discovered this session: a live Google Search and Google Maps check for "B-Acoustics Singapore" returned zero results under that name — only unrelated businesses. This needs to be confirmed and, if necessary, fixed before any of the photo or review items below have anywhere to go.

1.1

Confirm whether a GBP listing exists at all

HIGH PRIORITY

WHAT: Log into business.google.com with whatever account the business has used before, and check whether a B-Acoustics listing already exists in an unverified or suspended state, or whether none was ever created.

WHY: Everything downstream — reviews, photos, the local map pack, AggregateRating schema on the website — depends on a live, verified listing existing first. "No reviews yet" and "no listing exists" require completely different next steps, and the live search this session pointed at the latter.

1.2

Create/claim and verify the listing if none exists

HIGH PRIORITY

WHAT: Set up the listing with the business name "B-Acoustics", category (Acoustical consultant), the published address (228 Changi Road #03-02, Singapore 419741), phone (+65 9641 6999), and website URL. Complete whichever verification method Google offers (postcard, phone, or video/photo verification).

WHY: This is a Google-mandated identity check tied to the physical business — it cannot be delegated or done by anyone other than someone with legitimate authority over the business.

Constraint: the address is legally tied to Biruni Design SG Pte Ltd (the registered entity B-Acoustics operates under). The GBP listing itself is fine to use this address — it's the same address already published in the site's own schema — but nothing in the listing's name, photos, or description should reference "Biruni Design" anywhere.

Google Business Profile photo shot list

Eight shots, grouped by category. The goal for this batch is to replace the two AI-generated placeholder images currently sitting unused in the project folder (GBP photo 1.png, GBP photo 2.png) with real photography, and to build out a proper GBP gallery alongside the one genuine photo already on hand (a real installed-panel shot from an earlier project).

2.1 Exterior or building entrance, 228 Changi Road

MEDIUM PRIORITY

WHAT: A shot of the building entrance or unit door that a client would actually walk up to.

WHY: Matches the published NAP (name/address/phone) address — a genuine trust signal for GBP and for anyone map-checking the business before a visit.

Skip this one if: the unit or building entrance doesn't clearly read as a legitimate "acoustics consultancy" location, or if it isn't presentable. A bad exterior shot is worse than no exterior shot.

2.2 Logo / signage close-up

OPTIONAL

WHAT: A close-up of any physical B-Acoustics branding — a door decal, a sign, a branded business card on a desk.

WHY: Reinforces brand identity in the GBP gallery; low priority since it's not essential if no physical signage exists yet.

Only shoot this if actual B-Acoustics signage exists — don't stage a placeholder.

2.3 Wide shot of the studio/office interior

HIGH PRIORITY

WHAT: A wide interior shot — desks, material samples, the kind of space a prospective client actually walks into for a consultation.

WHY: This is the single most common "what does this business actually look like" photo a prospective client checks before enquiring.

2.4 Close-up of acoustic material / samples

MEDIUM PRIORITY

WHAT: Panel swatches, insulation samples, whatever material samples are physically on hand.

WHY: Visually reinforces "acoustic consultant" in a way generic office photos don't, and doubles as usable material for the website's existing Materials section.

2.5

Thomas Ee / Ivan Cheong / Delon Lee actually working

HIGH PRIORITY

WHAT: One of the three named team members at a desk reviewing a plan or drawing, or on-site with a measuring tool.

WHY: Direct real-photo replacement for the AI-generated GBP photo 1.png, which must not be uploaded to GBP under Google's authentic-representation policy.

2.6

Candid team shot

MEDIUM PRIORITY

WHAT: Two people talking over a floor plan or drawing — a natural working moment, not a posed lineup.

WHY: Useful for GBP's "Team" photo category and doubles as a refresh for the website's Studio section.

2.7

A real installed job

HIGH PRIORITY

WHAT: A soundproofed wall, a panel install, or a finished room — the same category as the one real photo already on file from a previous project.

WHY: Completed-work photography is the strongest category of trust signal GBP supports, and the strongest content for the website's "Selected Work" section (see Section 4).

Requires the client's consent before photographing their premises or using the result publicly — even for a feature-less wall or ceiling shot with nothing identifying in frame.

2.8

A process/action shot on-site

MEDIUM PRIORITY

WHAT: Measuring, testing, or installing — captured mid-task rather than posed.

WHY: Direct real-photo replacement for the AI-generated GBP photo 2.png, same authenticity concern as item 2.5.

Requires client consent if shot on their premises (same as 2.7).

Client reviews (Google Business Profile)

Ranked the single highest-impact item on the entire project punch list, and the lowest effort — for you. It is also entirely blocked on Section 1 (a live, verified listing has to exist before anyone can leave a review on it).

3.1 Identify 3-5 recent, satisfied clients to approach first

HIGH PRIORITY

WHAT: A short list of clients from completed projects in the last few months who had a good outcome and would plausibly say yes to a quick review request.

WHY: A handful of genuine, specific reviews outweighs a larger number of generic ones for both prospective-client trust and Google's own ranking signals.

3.2 Send the review request with a direct link

HIGH PRIORITY

WHAT: Once the GBP listing is live (Section 1), Google Business Profile Manager can generate a short direct review link — send that link individually rather than asking people to search for the business.

WHY: A direct link measurably increases completion rate over asking someone to find and review the listing themselves.

On-site testimonials & case studies

The homepage's "Selected Work" section currently shows three generic, unnamed category cards (Open-Plan Office / Home Theatre / Industrial Plant) with no client names, no testimonials, and no logos — flagged as a design-review finding: the site currently has no third-party trust signal anywhere on it besides its own copy.

4.1

A short written quote from 2-3 past clients

HIGH PRIORITY

WHAT: One or two sentences in the client's own words about the outcome — doesn't need to be polished copywriting, a genuine sentence reads better than a scripted one.

WHY: Direct fix for the "no third-party trust signal" gap; can run alongside the generic category cards or replace them once enough are collected.

4.2

Permission to use the client's name and/or company

HIGH PRIORITY

WHAT: Explicit sign-off on how they want to be credited — full name, first name only, company name, or anonymous ("Facilities Manager, F&B tenant, Raffles Place").

WHY: A named quote is significantly more credible than an anonymous one, but using a name or company without clear permission isn't an option.

4.3

Client logo, if they're comfortable with it

OPTIONAL

WHAT: A usable logo file (SVG or high-res PNG) from a client willing to be publicly associated with the project.

WHY: A row of recognisable client logos is one of the fastest-reading trust signals on a B2B site — but only worth pursuing with clients who are genuinely comfortable being named, not worth pushing for.

4.4

An achieved metric, if one was measured

OPTIONAL

WHAT: If a project had a documented target (e.g. "STC 52 achieved" or "reduced boundary noise from 78 to 63 dB(A)"), the before/after figures.

WHY: Turns a generic project photo into a specific, credible case study — but only where real numbers exist; nothing here should be estimated or invented to fill the gap.

Optional / nice-to-have items

Not blocking anything else, worth doing opportunistically rather than scheduling a dedicated push for.

5.1

Institute of Acoustics (IOA) membership badge

OPTIONAL

WHAT: An official IOA membership badge or logo, if IOA provides one for MIOA-credentialed members, to accompany Thomas Ee's existing "MIOA" text credential on the Studio section.

WHY: A recognisable third-party credential mark reads faster than text alone. Worth checking IOA's member resources page for a usable badge asset.

5.2

A real Instagram or social profile URL

OPTIONAL

WHAT: If the business decides to run a real, active Instagram (or other platform) account, its URL.

WHY: The footer's Instagram icon was removed in an earlier session because it pointed nowhere — this is only worth doing if there's an actual intent to run the account, not just to fill the icon slot back in.

5.3

A one-paragraph company blurb for directory listings

OPTIONAL

WHAT: A ready-to-paste 2-4 sentence business description, for the Singapore business-directory listings researched in Backlink Targets.md (Yellow Pages SG, G Search, Hotfrog, etc.) — most listing forms ask for one.

WHY: Having this ready removes a small friction point from an already-low-effort task; can be drafted collaboratively in a future session if useful.

Rules that apply across every item

- Never frame anything showing "Biruni Design" branding, signage, mail, or badges. B-Acoustics is legally operated under Biruni Design SG Pte Ltd (a related company), but that relationship must not be visually or textually exposed anywhere public.
- Client-site photos and quotes both need the client's explicit consent before any public use — GBP, website, or otherwise — even where no identifying features are visible in a photo.
- Google Business Profile requires photos to be accurate representations of the real business. The two AI-generated placeholder images in the project folder (GBP photo 1.png, GBP photo 2.png) must not be uploaded to GBP as if they show the real team or workspace — they were generated for ad-creative exploration only, and using them on GBP risks a policy strike against the listing.
- NAP consistency matters everywhere an address is published. Use exactly "228 Changi Road #03-02, Singapore 419741" and "+65 9641 6999" on the GBP listing and any directory listing — matching what's already in the website's own schema.
